We, the staff of Galaxy, dedicate this yearbook to the class of '83

We have chosen as our theme "Only Time Will Tell." As we all leave Lewis, there are countless questions in our minds about our futures. These questions are unanswerable and will remain unanswerable until the uncertain future becomes the unforgettable past. What the future holds for each one of us . . . Only Time Will Tell, and with that we give you

Dear Graduates,

Congratulations! You, the young men and women of the class of '83, have proven yourselves. You have met and overcome the challenge of difficult courses, tests, and Regents Examinations. You have been the muscles in the Lewis athletic teams, the brains of our academic achievements, and the heart of the whole school. Your team spirit and your work with fellow students and teachers has demonstrated your readiness to succeed in the complex world of college and careers.

Your parents have played a key role in bringing you to this level of achievement and readiness as have your counselors and teachers. But the accomplishment we celebrate in the graduation of the class of '83 is yours alone. It is your future whose foundation has now been established, and it is securely to you that we look in the decades to come for the answers to the problems which increasingly vex our society and global community: shrinking resources, growing needs, and equity in sharing the world's wealth. Your skills in cooperation and problem solving will be taxed — but will not be found wanting.

I know that your years here at Lewis have prepared you to make your mark on the future and to mold your environment into new and creative designs. Good luck!

Sincerely,

Robert P. Burns

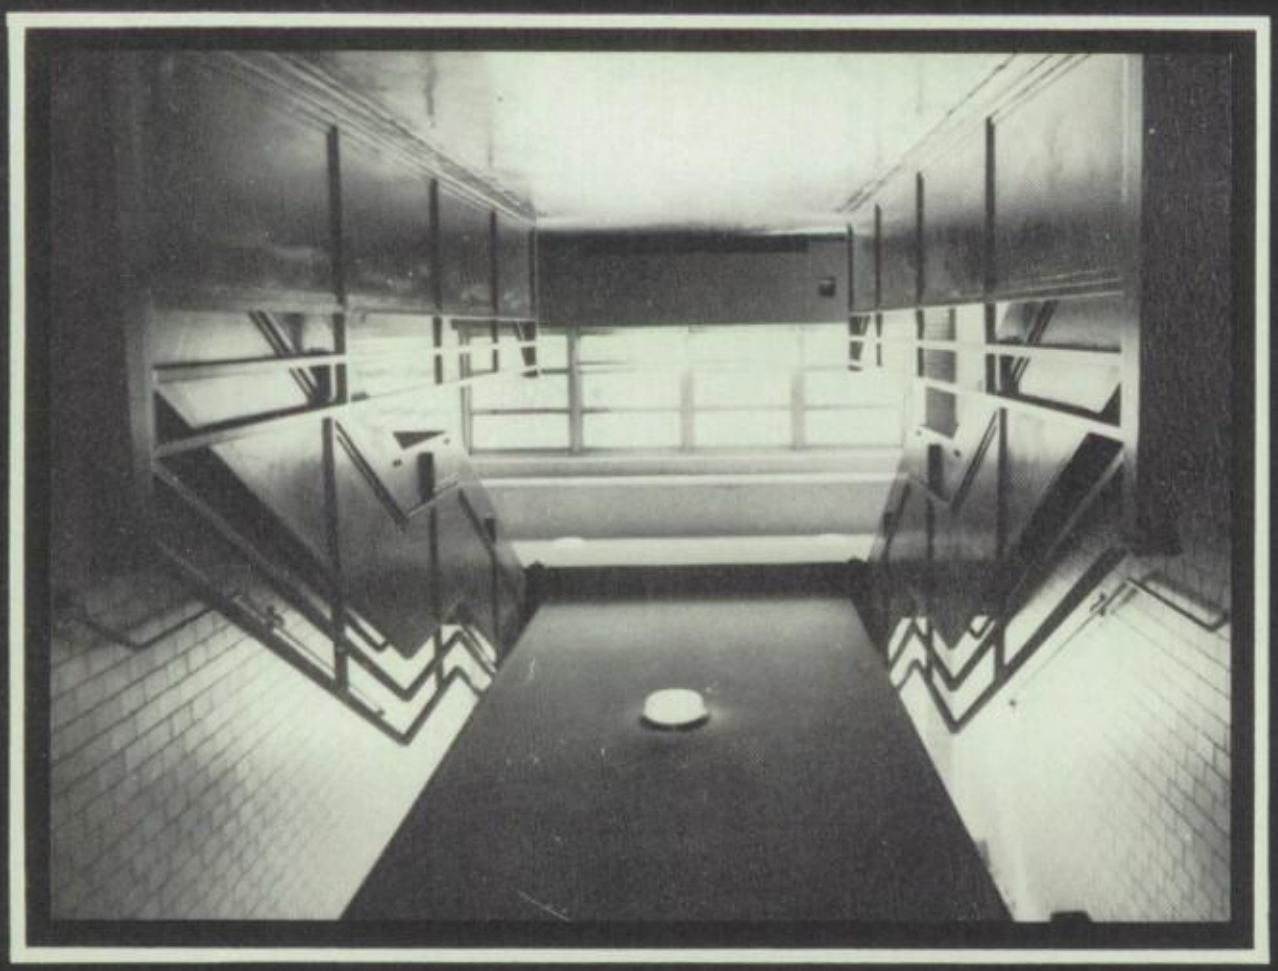
We're leaving now



I think I'm slightly lost

It's in our eyes

Do I dare disturb the universe?

In a minute there is time for decisions and revisions which a minute will reverse.

"Reminiscing"

You and I against the sky
Forever the dreams we dreamt
Of times and places and people
Undaunted, unfailing, yet innocent

You and I against the sky
Recall the beauty of it all Friendships found between two strangers Lonely, loving, caring, hoping

You and I against the sky
Leave behind the sorrows and fears of past events
The future's ours created by ourselves
From a patience nurtured by experience

I'll see you there in a year or two Or maybe even ten or twenty
But wherever we'll be, you and me,
Comes quickly without our knowing it

David A. Lee

Poised and ready with his glass
The man of class begins to drink
His eyes look cold and seem to accuse
But who is he accusing and what have they done?

He seems so sophisticated and wise
He knows much — rather he seems to know too much Perhaps this is the reason for his coldness
The man of class . . .

Imagination

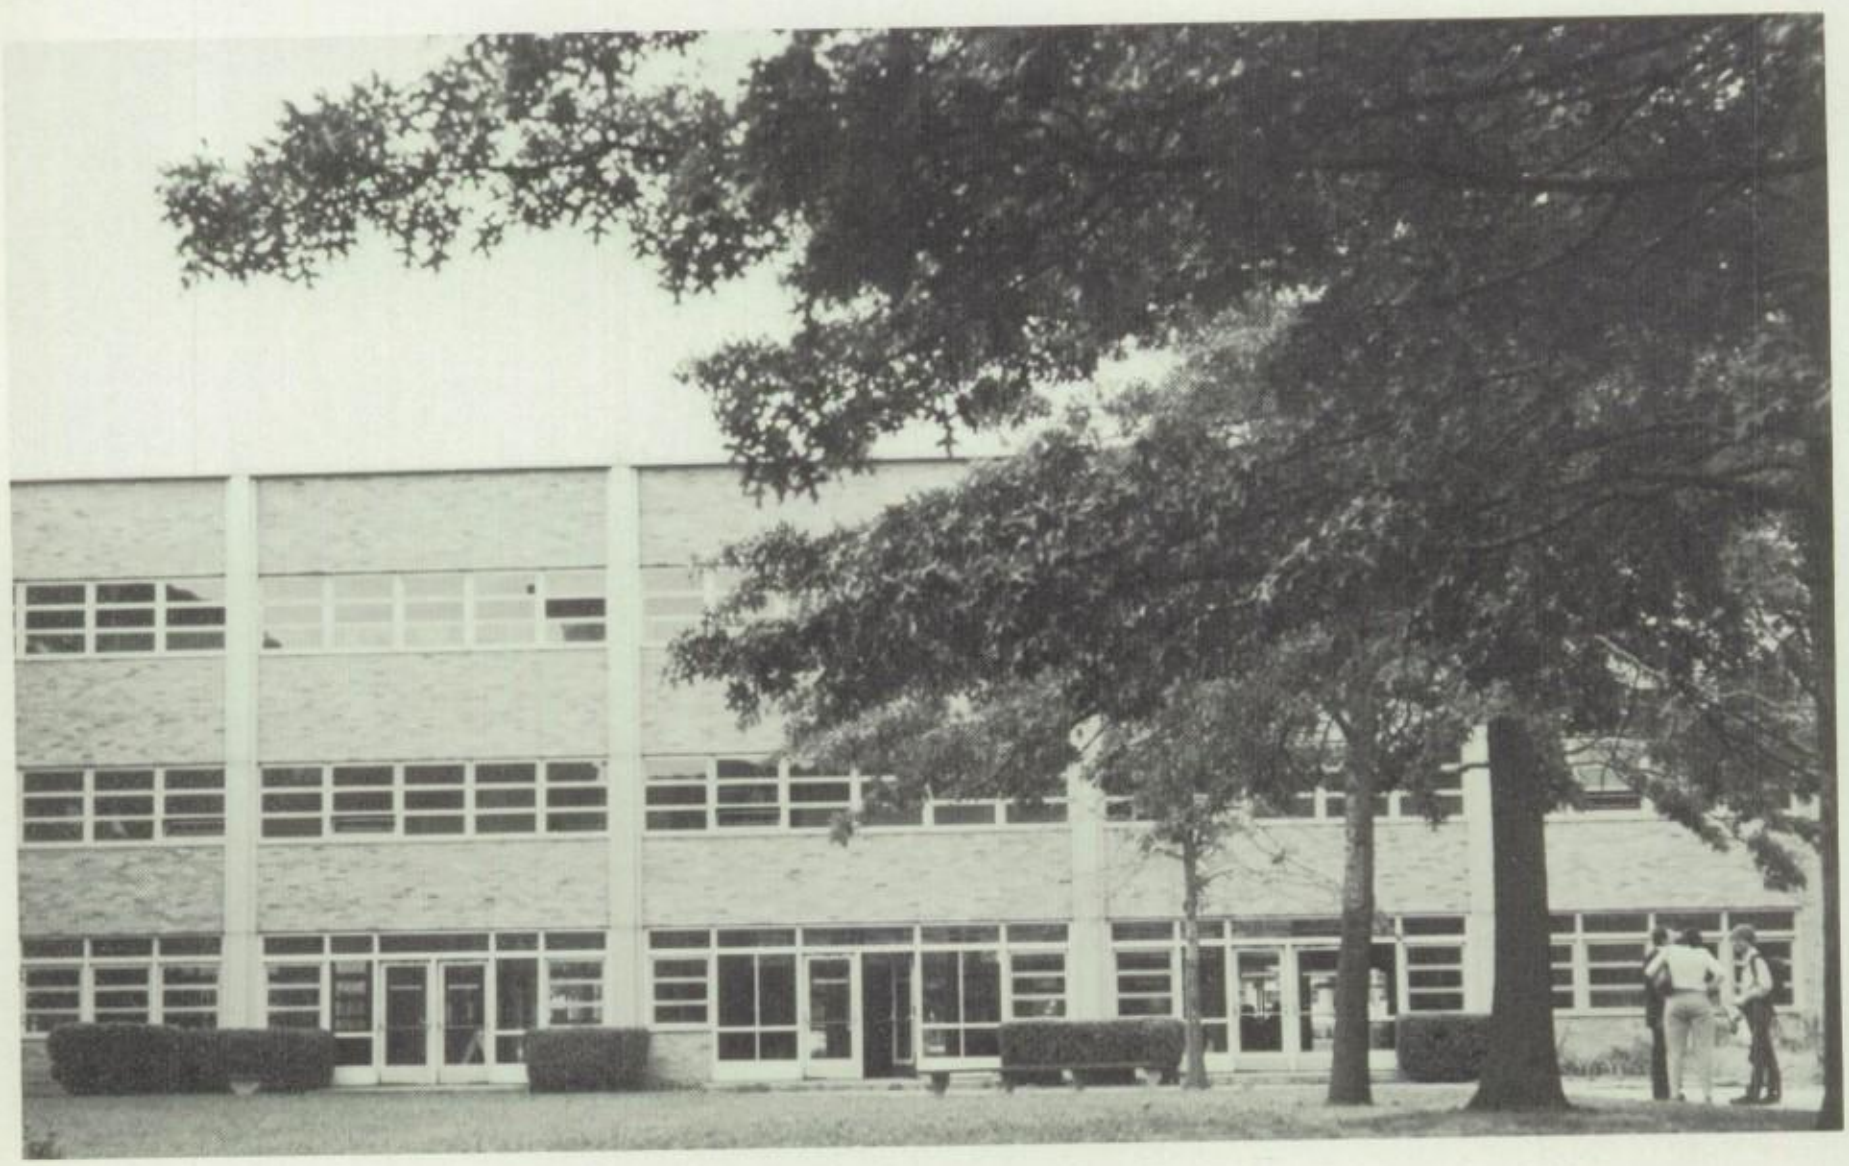
All the time while I lay awake
So many things roll around in my head
Not knowing what to do with my life
Wondering why I see these pictures
Maybe it's just my imagination
fooling around with me
Too much struggle, too much strife
Living a life that's so unfair
So many people, so few who care
Am I Alive or dead
Maybe it's just my imagination
fooling around with me

Joseph Nardulli

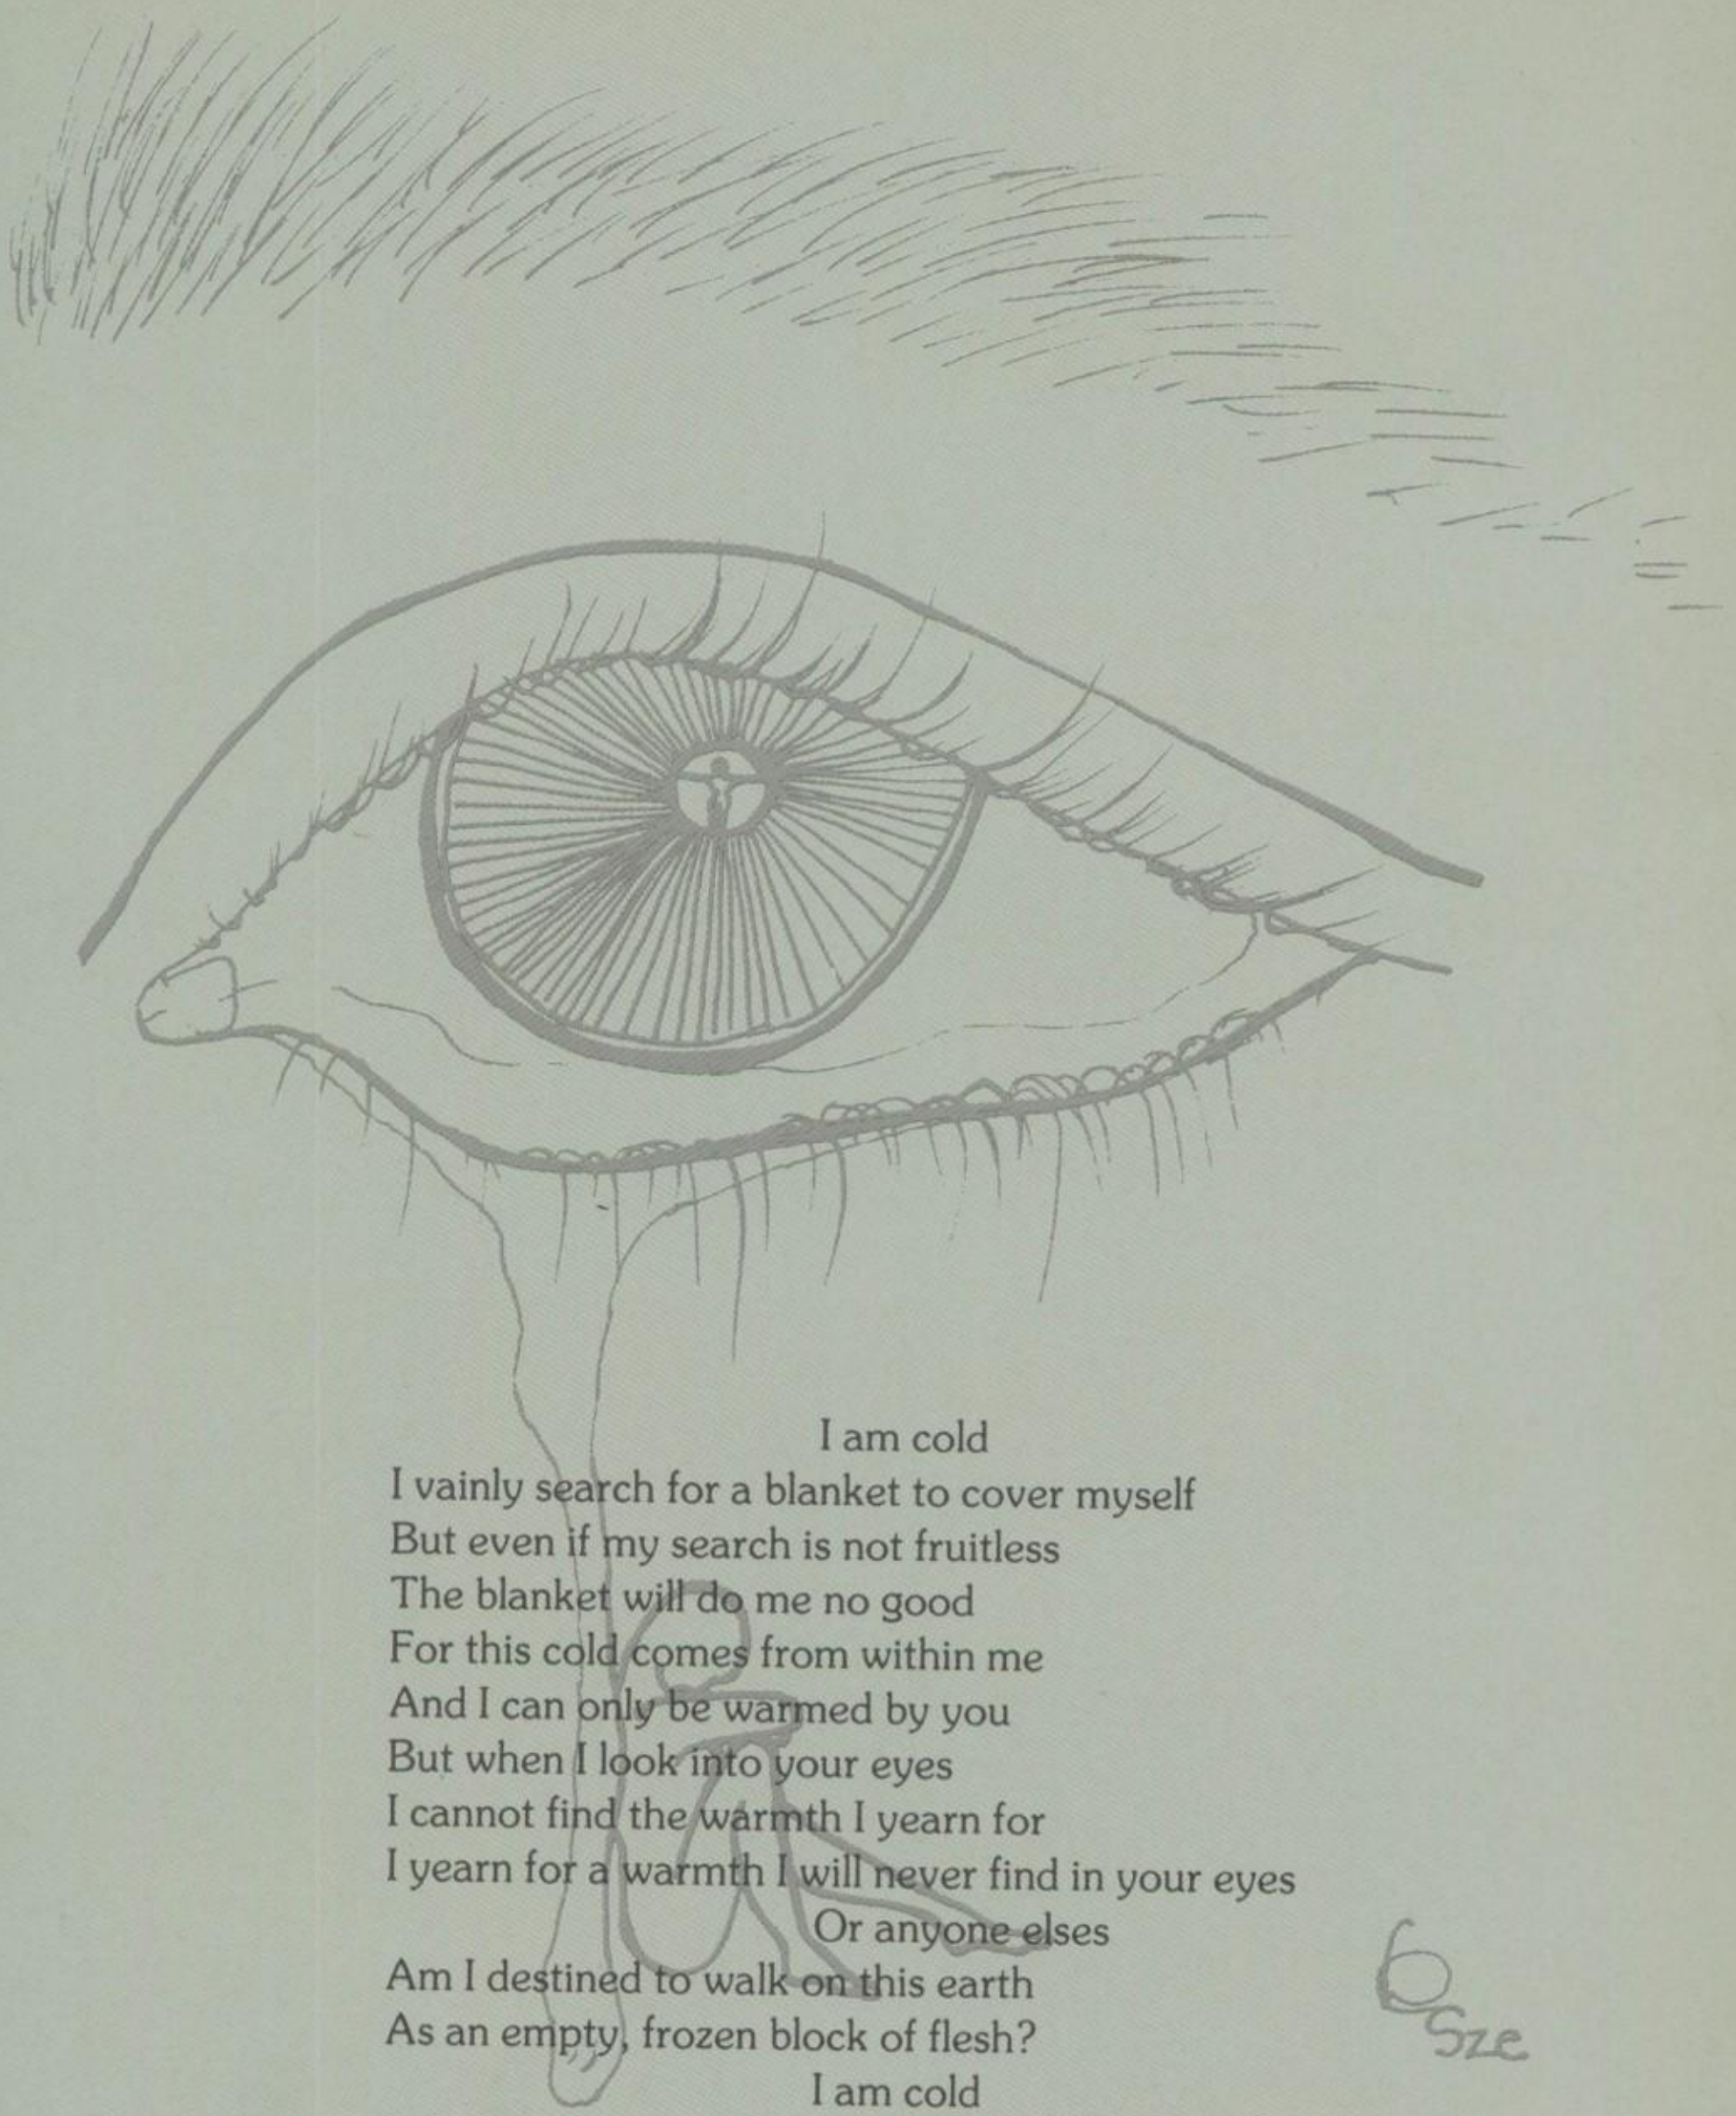
The lesson for today is tardiness

We're being watched, act normal

"Raquel, is that you!?"



Are you sure this isn't Bellevue



I am cold
I vainly search for a blanket to cover myself
But even if my search is not fruitless
The blanket will do me no good
For this cold comes from within me
And I can only be warmed by you
But when I look into your eyes I cannot find the warmth I yearn for I yearn for a warmth I will never find in your eyes
Or anyone elses
Am I destined to walk on this earth
As an empty, frozen block of flesh?
I am cold

Each and every now and then has a way of twisting its end.
Throughout every corner in the mind an unknown thought lays so kind.
Ideas form and reappear in the image of those so dear Dreaming of these thoughts in sight one will realize who is right Turn these emotions inside and out for this is the moment of no doubt.

Mayor Koch Holds Press Conference With City High School Students

by KIRSTEN HOHMANN

On Friday, Dec. 10 approximately 100 students from high schools all over the city (including Francis Lewis) had the honor of attending a press conference held by Mayor Koch at City Hall. This large group of students consisted mainly of the editors of various high school newspapers and their photographers. At this conference, Mayor Koch entertained any questions concerning prevalent issues of the day and proceeded to provide reasonable answers and explanations. Chancellor of the Board of Education, Frank Macchiarola was also present to answer any questions directed to him. As the mayor was a few minutes late, the students had an opportunity to look around the Blue Room where the conference was held — a room filled with huge portraits of former presidents and eminent statesmen. When the mayor finally approached the podium, a multitude of camera flashes went off, and the question-answer session began.

One of the questions initially asked was concerned with the funding available for career counseling and other advisory programs in high schools. Mr. Macchiarola replied to this question by explaining that although the Bd. of Ed. is not financially able to provide as many special counselors as they would like, they have made a great deal of computer time available to the high schools. They are extending a software computer program which provides information about colleges and career options. An example of this is the Metroguide system used here at Lewis.

When asked about his position in relation to tuition tax credits for private schools, the mayor replied that he favors such a policy. He believes that this "promotes healthy competition among the parochial, private, and public schools." He stated that the tuition tax credit system would provide funding in a modest way for those parents who want to exercise the option of sending their children to a private or parochial school. He believes that the parochial school system is well integrated at present and that this new program would not encourage segregation of any kind. Another student asked whether the mayor believed in the use of a stock transfer tax to aid the public school system. He replied that "it is bad government to set aside a particular tax to be given to a particula sector of government" and believes that it is better to allot the funds after they have been placed in a central treasury.

"A ,or priorities are cops and education"

Another important issue discussed, revolved around the controversy of public versus private transportation. Koch asserts that he is in favor of continuing private sector involvement in mass transportation, for they serve as a supplement and not a substitute for the public system. As the MTA is under fiscal restraints, Koch believes that it is plausible that the private companies may provide better service. He feels that such healthy competition might provide incentive to increase the quality of service in the public transportation system.

The mayor is supportive of casino gambling in the Rockaways and feels that it will attract more money and thus be beneficial to the city. He realizes that illegal gambling does exist and would continue to thrive even if he did not support this policy. Although he does realize that legalization of gambling might attract more crime, he insists that the extra income generated by the casinos can be used to increase the police forces needed to control the crime rate.

Mayor Koch also presented his views in relation to the financial assistance available to students in pursuit of a college education. He feels that "N.Y. State is doing more than any other state in the country as it relates to college grants and loans for tuition." However, he admits that it is true that no system is immune to the cutbacks.

Mr. Macchiarola responded to a question on school disciplinary procedure and security by stating that "order precedes learning, and any individual who interferes with the learning process must be dealt with strenuously." He added that a task force of the mayor has developed recommendations for the school system on such safety issues as the handling of weapons, security regulations, sanctions for inappropriate behavior, and student courts.

Another student questioned Macchiarola about the "join a school" program which has been adopted by some schools in the city. He replied that it is a reasonable program which encourages corporate participation in the development of better facilities, work-study programs, and jobs for young people. In some cases the companies involved are setting up funding proposals, which the Chancellor finds encouraging.

The fate of schools which have been closed down was also discussed. Both Koch and Macchiarola agreed that the prevention of vandalism is absolutely essential whether the buildings are being set aside for re-opening in the future or being transformed into another facility. However, watch guards are a very expensive prospect and therefore less expensive alternatives must be explored.

Mayor Koch stated his major priorities to be those of "cops and education." $1 billion more are being spent in the school system since Koch was elected to the office of mayor, and the Chancellor of the school system is supportive of his policies. However, Macchiarola feels that "many schools aren't pulling together in a community. Student disruptions are manifestations of this." He feels that in such cases the answer involves the students — student leadership must increase student involvement and take responsibility.

Mayor Koch concluded the 1 hour conference by stating that he felt a lot of important issues were discussed. He then thanked the students for their attendance and their thoughtful questions.

Fellow Seniors 1983:

Even if I wasn't a Senior this year, I'd wish I were!! I really think you're a great, talented, intelligent, spunky, compassionate, irresistible, stupendous . . . class!! The list could go on infinitely. I honestly feel that Seniors '83 are a great bunch of people.

As your Senior Class President, I'm proud to have been able to represent you and serve you to the best of my ability; as your friend, I'm glad to have shared all of the experiences and fun times we had.

I'll always love, and remember you all, Seniors of 1983. (even those of you who don't laugh at my jokes and insist that they're corny sometimes!)

With Love and Fond Memories Always,
Caterina Curatolo
Senior President 1983

P.S. Senior Sing '83 will always live on as numero uno!!!

Dear Fellow Graduating Seniors,

We, as representatives of our class for the Student Organization, would urge you to consider the importance of our high school years in having developed personal maturity, a sense of accomplishment, and the idea that we are each individuals and yet parts of a community that is striving for similar goals. As we enter the "real world" we will be confronted with obligations which will require that we make use of our past experiences. In doing so, our future will be benefited by the years that we so much endured, yet now cherish.

This yearbook, of which this letter is a page, attests to the ability of students to work in unison for the same objective. Keep this book as it serves as a reminder of our classmates, teachers, counselors, administrators, and other faculty members at Francis Lewis.

Sincerely,

David A. Lee

We the Senior Class of 1983, being of sound body and absolutely no mind, do hereby bequeath the following:

To the Department of Sanitation — all our old program cards to do with what they feel is good and proper.

To the Department of Energy — all of Mr. Levine's old rexo's to be used as an alternative source of power.

To Mr. Burns — a whistle to go with his football team.

To Mr. Boiko — ten free voice lessons and all our love.

To Mr. Hamilton — a new skirt to go with his bagpipes.

To Ms. Kovary — her very own G-string.

To Dr. Moresh — a box of Preparation H and a can of mace to protect him from all his killer problems.

To Mr. Manfre — a smile to go in all his zeros.

To Mr. Mermelstein — a tee-shirt with the entire epic of Milton's Paradise Lost.

To Mr. S. Rosenberg — a blow dryer.

To Ms. Salzinger — her very own line of Helena Rubinstein cosmetics.

To Mr. Sherman — a pack of slightly used attack dogs.

NEW WORLD MAN

He's a rebel and a runner
He's a signal turning green He's a restless young romantic wants to run a big machine He's got a problem with his poisons but you know he'll find a cure He's cleaning up his sytems to keep his nature pure

Learning to match the feat of the old world man
Learning to catch the heat of the third world man

He's got to make his own mistakes and learn to mend the mess he makes He's old enough to know what's right but young enough not to choose it.
He's noble enough to win the world but weak enough to lose it

He's a new world man

He's a radio receiver tuned to factories and farms He's a writer and a ranger and a young boy bearing arms
He's got a problem with his powers

His weapons aren't patrolled He's got to walk a fine line and keep himself controlled

Trying to save the day for the old world man Trying to pave the way for the third world man

He's not concerned with yeaterday
He knows constant change is here today
He's nobel enough to know what's right but weak enough not to choose it He's wise enough to win the world but fool enough to loose it

He's a new world man

Learning to match the feat of the old world man
He's learning to catch the heat of the third world man

He's a new world man
He's a New World Man

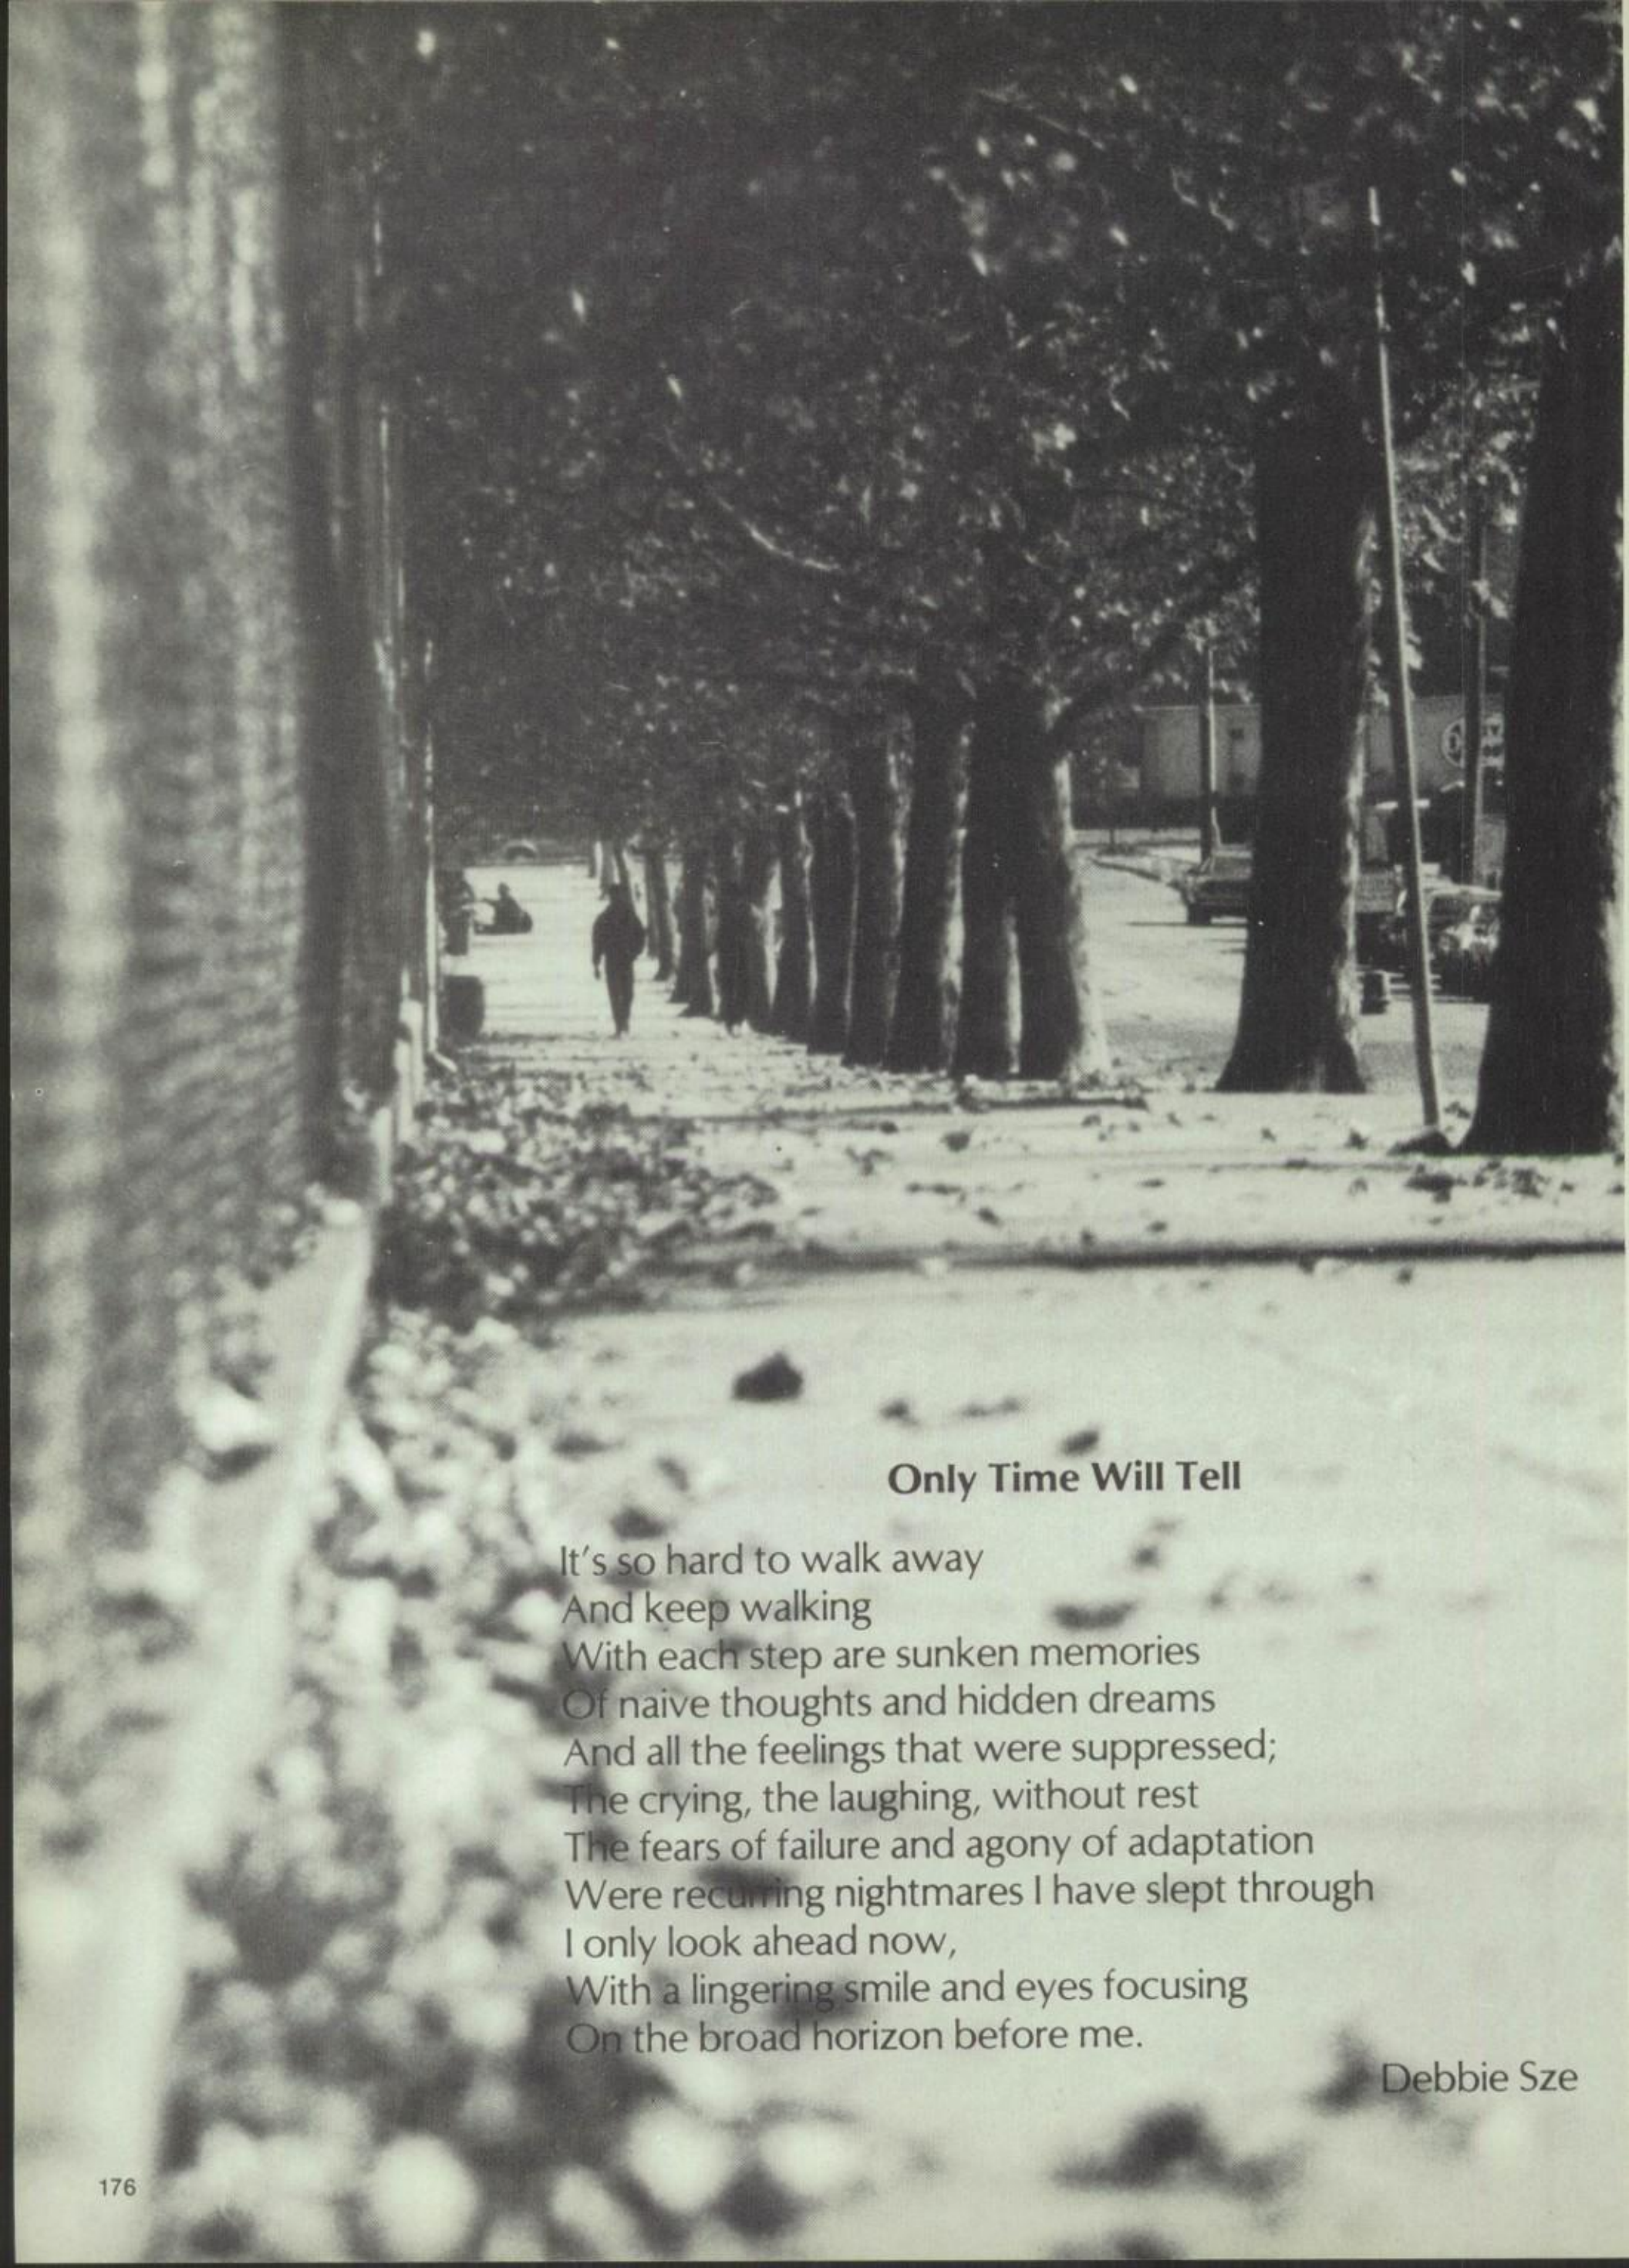
This certifies sans doute, that we have achieved and/or epitomized our intellectual hauts, reaching beyond the proletariat boundaries of learning. We will be the leaders of tomorrow . . .

From the ivy halls of Francis Lewis High School, we shall commence into the world a new class of citizenry. A toast, then, to Francis Lewis, the high school, the patriot, the spirit.



Only Time Will Tell

It's so hard to walk away
And keep walking
With each step are sunken memories
Of naive thoughts and hidden dreams
And all the feelings that were suppressed;
The crying, the laughing, without rest
The fears of failure and agony of adaptation
Were recurring nightmares I have slept through I only look ahead now,
With a lingering smile and eyes focusing On the broad horizon before me.
